

Focus Groups

Focus groups help target development investments to high-value areas.

What users say they want from a product, service or website is frequently not consistent with what they will actually purchase and use. To be confident that you are responding to the right user needs in the most effective ways, you need to understand the full context of users' Interests, Activities and Opinions (IAO).

Our Service

Akendi's experts are experienced in selecting, designing, facilitating and analyzing Focus Groups to provide you with a full understanding of a user base's IAO about your offerings.

We are uniquely qualified to use these tools to achieve the most insightful and accurate IAO data possible. Our experienced facilitators ensure that focus groups achieve the desired goals, and we are skilled in analyzing qualitative data.

Duration

On average, a Focus Group or User Survey project ranges from two to four weeks in duration.

Focus Groups

Our Approach

Based on your particular needs, goals, offerings and audiences, we can select from, design and administer a variety of focus group methods. These include:

- Facilitated focus groups of 6-12 participants
- Web-based focus groups

We are skilled at crafting discussion topics for focus groups and at facilitating the discussions to elicit the most revealing responses. We also pre-test questions to guard against issues with language and logic warping the results.

Outcomes

After administering your focus group we will provide expert analysis of the data. We will translate the information into strategies and designs for products, services, or websites that achieve their goals and are loved by users.
